LB 1349

But to use the two cents for information and technology concerns me. I won't put anybody on the spot in here, but it would be interesting. If any of you know, can raise your hand, I'd be glad to give you some time to tell me where we're going to spend this $2.5 million a year, say for the next four or five years. I'd be more than willing to listen. But I know nobody really knows, because I know from what we've discussed at the Appropriations Committee that even the people responsible for the information and technology programs are not quite sure either. But they need a pool of money, and they probably will need even more. And that's why I'm standing up to talk to you today. Please don't let you be talked into another bill like this one that would access the two cents left that should be coming back to the LB 309 responsibility. Even though we're authorized nine, we'll only have seven at the most. We can tell you, our LB 309 Committee can tell all of you where every brick that we spent a nickel on from LB 309 money is, and we can tell you on into the future where we should spend it. That's important, that kind of responsibility and accountability is important. We can't do that with information and technology. We witnessed this year, and we've discussed the plus $15 million boondoggle for CHARTS, for example. Who's in charge? We're not quite sure. When it comes to buildings, we'll tell you who's in charge, and we'll spend that money responsibly. We're not asking for more, but we can't afford to lose anymore either. If I should be around next year, and if in fact attempts should be made to access the other two cents that becomes available, I can promise you all there will be a serious struggle on the floor. I would hope that no one would encourage anybody on this floor to introduce a bill like this one again next year. Why wouldn't they access the 21 cents or part of the 21 cents that goes into the General Fund? Information and technology is a responsibility I think that demands a General Fund budget responsibility. And as far as I'm concerned I think we've come to the point in time with information and technology and data systems and all the rest that you are all confused, as I am, and as everyone else is with what we're doing and what we're spending and how we're spending it, how we're accessing it. And we have a chaotic system in this state, ladies and gentlemen, you have to know that. All the agencies are doing what they think is the right thing to do, even though there is a committee, called...what is it, TI...NITCE, I hate to pronounce
